The Greatest Love Story Ever told

i learning self reliance a superpower serge negativities puts to bed baby lies hurt the baby behind closed doors... calling me a liar what's wrong w/ your family why didn't they trust you when you were younger says i'm twisting her words around...

tell me more about when you stayed up for 2 days inherently insecure

'Bullshitters' zones paintings under the mistletoe a promise was made a boy seeking truth believed in a partner asleep to past loves, never again would he make the same mistake. but he had just entered the Phantom Snarks.

a rose on his hand, and a heart on his sleeve-he knew he could love anyone at least he believed a Quester for truth meets his greatest match one he who never leaves but lies to snatch a tale of self reliance for he always thought he relied on other humans to keep him afloat.
The value of family trusting a father who lies, once he discovered the truth no longer could he shield his eyes. still sleeping and speaking too much some just don't listen for they've lost their trust an example of self reliance no longer in denial constant eye watch conversation Dance. now to enter forever a state of panic, alert to modern havoc this is how heroes are made, Naturally we want and feel we should trust as humans with families to care for and families that welcome from.
Naive to the painful reality he never wanted to accept. little did he know this would be his catalyst ~ now only to remember to keep alert and to breathe, to ~~not~~ keep the silence and guard the heart on the sleeve - from forgetting and regretting and to surrender w/out judgement or hatred - for it only hurts himself.
